Greenery Will Bloom Again (Torneranno I Prati)

Set in the trenches of the Asiago plateau, during World War I, it is loosely based on the short story La Paura (1921), by Federico De Roberto. We are on the Northeastern war front in 1917 where a group of soldiers fight close to the Austrian trenches. In the film, the story takes place during one night where the soldiers are surrounded only by silence and snow. Inside them only cold, fear, fatigue and resignation. The future is always unpredictable: sometimes there are long waits and the peace of the mountain becomes a place where you die. It's like a de profundis dedicated to the memory of many soldiers who died in place where grass would again grow, erasing the memory of their sacrifice.
