I Have friends in Heaven (Ho amici in Paradiso)

Felice Castriota is a Salentinian (Salento is a southern part of Italy) accountant, impulsive and a little superficial gets caught by the police when his reckless desires lead him to launder money for the underworld. Felice accepts the prosecutors offer of community service rather than jail in exchange for informing against “U Pacciu,” the important gangster for whom he has laundered money to the Authorities.

At the Don Guanello Center in Rome, Felice slowly integrates to his new surroundings through a series of crises centered around his challenging interactions with patients and his developing love for a young psychologist. But as everything seems to go well for Felice, his past threatens to undo his newfound family.
